LENIENCY TOWARD A BOY

JUDGE BAKER CONSIDERED HIS YOUTH AND FAMILY'S STANDING.

Charles Puckett Will Go Back to His Clay County Home a Wiser Boy -D. H. Foutz Fined.

Charles Puckett, a stripling of a youth, who lives with his parents in Clay county, was arraigned before Judge Baker, in the United States Court, yesterday, on a charge | City of Tehuantepec, an old and pic of stealing a package from a United States mall bag. The boy tearfully pleaded guilty. and his father went on the witness stand | historic race. The people of the city and and told the story of the boy's theft. The honesty of the family, their high standing the first American plow ever introduced in the community in which they reside and the tender age of the offender caused the court to show leniency in the case.

The Pucket boy has been employed as a mail carrier at Coalmont, Clay county. He carried what is known as a star route. His parents are respectable people and reside on a farm. One day the boy became unduly curious to see what was inside a mail sack which he was carrying and opened the bag. Inside he found a small package, which his curiosity led him to open also. In the package was a watch which the inboy took the watch, and later his father found it in his possession. As soon as the favorite beverage they have down there parent learned how the boy came by the time piece he went to the man who should have received it and settled the matter with him. In some way, however, the government authorities received information Its Assessment Placed at $450,000about the theft and young Puckett was ar-

The boy was brought before the court yesterday, trembling and weeping. He sobbingly told the court how he had taken the and told Judge Baker of the respectability of the family. The judge saw his duty before him and proceeded to dispose of the case. First, however, he gave his views on clined to place on mere children. He point- day: ed out that people too often place temptations in the way of a youth and he falls simply through circumstances and not because he is recklessly bad. There are times, the court said, when children commit acts brough mere heedlessness and ignorance that in grown people would be considered criminal. Judge Baker then informed the boy that he proposed to let him go on his good behavior. He told the youth to go home and be a good boy and obey his parents. The fact was impressed on the mind of the boy that in the event he does not conduct himself properly he can be brought before the court at any time. The gratitude of the boy was expressed in his tearful

In speaking of the case afterward Judge Baker said: "Had I sentenced this boy to prison the least that I could have given im would have been one year. INJURED MAN BLED PROFUSELY FOR TWO HOURS IN SALOON YARD.

Sight of Gore Made the Saloon Keeper Sick, He Says-Police Arrest Hupp.

In a brawl at Chris Roepke's saloon, 1357 Shelby street, yesterday afternoon Frank Sloan, living at 1005 East Market street, received injuries that will probably cause his Roepke witnessed the fight between the two men and said that but few words were passed before Hupp struck Sloan with a stem beer glass, felling him to the floor. Roepke said that Sloan had been around the saloon nearly all afternoon, and about 3 o'clock Hupp entered with a man named Harvey Dowden, a farmer, living in the country, and the two drank beer. At that time Sloan was at the pool table in the rear of the room and but a short distance from the bar. No one was playing with him, but Hupp walked toward the cue rack and taking down a cue said he would play Sloan a game. The latter said he did not want to play with Hupp, and when the men engaged in hot words Roepke says he told Hupp to leave the table.

Hupp and Dowden left the saloon and walked toward the fountain, but returned The stockholders of the Mexican Coffee | Roepke's saloon, Sloan was standing at the end of the bar near the pool table drinking a gass of beer. Roepke says that Sloan asked Hupp to drink with him, but the latter refused. Hupp then walked over toward Sloan, according to the story told by Roepke, and brushed against him. Sloan told him he did not want to have anything to do with him and pushed him away and struck at him, the blow striking Hupp on

Sloan was bleeding profusely, but managed to get to his feet and walk out into the beer garden at the side of the house. He staggered into the back yard and sat on a chair near the alley, where the blood flowed from his wounds. Roepke says the assault occurred about 4:30, but Hupp claims it was before 4 o'clock. Hupp and Dowden left the saloon and walked south on Shelby street, while no attention was paid to Sloan. Roepke claims the sight of the blood pouring from Sloan's injuries made him sick and he did not go to his assistance on that account. He did not send for a physician and it was after o'clock when Sloan crawled into the alley back of the saloon and called for help. A man came to him and seeing his condition went into the saloon and called the ambulance. Sloan was taken to the City Dispensary, and it was after 7 o'clock when the police were notified. Sloan was weak from loss of blood and a hasty examination showed that the skull near the right temple had been fractured by the force of the blow and a sharp point of the beer glass. The other cuts were also so dangerous that it was necessary to place a bandage over his

POLICE ARREST HUPP. Capt. Kinney dispatched eight detectives in search of the man who struck Sloan, and Bicycle Patrolmen Griffin and Manning also started out on the case. The latter arrived at the saloon first and secured a description of the man wanted. They went south on Shelby street and found him sitting in front of a saloon near the Belt Railroad. They held him until Capt. Kinney arrived in a two-scated wagon and he was taken to the charge of assault and battery with intento kill and was not admitted to bail on account of the dangerous condition of Sloan Hupp was slightly under the influence of liquor and talked a great deal about the case, telling the detectives to notify his family that he was in trouble, but for then not to worry as he was not to blame for what he had done. TROUBLE IN THE FIRM.

Helm, Lewis & Co., of the Stockyards.

Dissolve Partnership.

At the stockyards, yesterday, it was announced that the live stock commission firm of Helm, Lewis & Co. had dissolved, Harry R. Lewis, junior member, retiring. Mr. Helm was seen last night in the Hotel English, where he resides, and asked as to the correctness of a report that there had been some difficulty between members of the firm. "I would rather not discuss the matter," he replied. "Mr. Lewis has left the firm and the business will remain suspended until things can be straightened out to make a new start.' When asked if Mr. Lewis had left In-dianapolis, Mr. Helm said: "He went away about two weeks ago, but returned last Sunday. I do not know whether he is here now or not, but I saw him last night. Mr. Helm said he would probably take a new partner when he resumed business or soon after, but declined to state whether he had any one in mind now. The firm of Helm, Lewis & Co. had a life of about eight years.

Jury Disagreed, Nine Being for and Three Against Conviction.

The jury in the Police Court that was trying Mike Toomey and Frank J. Dougass, charged with selling pools, disagreed last night after being out six hours and was discharged by Acting Judge Charles Remster. The evidence against the men was the apparatus taken by the detectives. the officers' testimony and the testimony of Elmer Cerkins, a bartender, living at two men who had won bets in the pool room. The defense was that the men had a right to transmit money by wire the same as other telegraph companies. The poolroom wire is operated under the name of the National District Telegraph Company The trial began at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and went to the jury at 5. The jury stood nine to three for conviction from first at the police station. Corkins was charged to last ballot. Prosecutor Collins said that an early date will be set for another hear-

Corkins was released to 14. Colonel Smock conferred with Col. James Hyer, chairman of the Cleveland reception committee, with reference to ob- ; 0000= taining quarters for the delegates from this State and succeeded in obtaining an option on two schoolhouses and a hall located only two squares from the Cleveland headquarters of the Indiana G. A. R. The option will be closed as soon as Colonel Hyer learns how many men may be pro-vided with sleeping quarters in the places selected. Colonel Smock said that 2,500 of the In-diana delegates will probably require such free sleeping quarters. Wire cots will be placed in the schoolhouses and hall, and if all of the space is not required for the Indiana veterans the rest will be turned over to the Cleveland committee to be bestowed elsewhere. Colonel Smock said that when the veterans were not quite as old as they are now and were better able physically to stand hardship the practice was to erect tents for those who could not afford hotel accommodations, but now more substantial shelters, such as schoolhouses and halls, are secured for their use at national en-

ELECTRIC LINE TO PLAINFIELD.

Company Files Articles with Capital of $200,000-Other Concerns.

Articles of incorporation of the Indianapolis, Plainfield & Western Traction Company, filed in the secretary of state's office yesterday, announce that the long-talked-of interurban road to connect Plainfield with this city will be built. The capital of the company is fixed at $200,000. The directors are Benjamin F. Nysewander, of this city formerly connected with a Southern fruit land development company; George J. Monroe, of Chicago; George E. Reynolds and Frank M. Smalley, Indianapolis, and Addison Ballard, Plainfield. The Tipton Electric Light Company in-corporated with a capital of $25,000 for the ourpose of providing the town and citizens of Tipton with electric light and power. The directors are C. W. Ramsay, A. W. Charles and George P. Bower.

The big General Electric Company, with a total capital of $24,508,200, filed articles vesterday in complicance with the new foreign incorporation law of Indiana and occasioned the secretary of state some disappointment by giving the amount of its capital represented in this State as $20,000. This amount is taken to represent the company's plant at Fort Wayne, known as the Fort Wayne electric works, the secretary of which, F. E. Hunting, is named as the big company's resident agent.
